Custom House. The first Custom House was built by John Churchman in 1385. Its successor, on the same spot, was entirely destroyed by the Great Fire in 1666. Another fire (in 1718) burnt down the Custom House built by Wren, and the fourth building underwent the same fate in 1814. The present Custom House was opened in 1817 (from Sir Robert Smirke's design) and is a very handsome building.

Dearest Kätchen,
I received your letter this morning. I don't know what to make of the Brooklands Cheque. Let him have it. We must get from Pendrick Chuff at Kingsford Cheltenham – very likely Pinchwick Chuff. You did not state in your letter what time we have to meet you at Highgate Tube Station. I shall therefore wait for you at 10 o'clock on Monday morning. Till Monday, my dear, with fondest kisses from Jill.

Miss Kätchen Reinstadt,
